SOUTHERN RAILWAY
INCREASES SUPPLY
OF COAL CARS HERE

Officials Agree To Allow Log Mountain Corporation 80 Cars Per Day, Almost Double Number Now Received.

MINING OUTLOOK FOR IMMEDIATE FUTURE BRIGHT

The Southern Railway will receive 80 cars of coal per day from this field and cars will be furnished for shipping according to arrangements made this week by the Log Mountain Coal Company and officials of the Southern. W. N. Duell, C. R. Preston and Southern officials six more, were in Middlesboro Monday.

This is the largest single order taken in this field and a large increase in the number of cars from the Southern. The original order from the railway made in July called for 50 cars. At one time this field furnished the Southern 100 cars per day. Major E. S. Helburn says this large shipment was lost on account of labor trouble. From the present outlook he says it will be entirely possible for his company to live up to contract.

Last year, Major Helburn says, the Virginia and West Virginia fields furnished the bulk of coal to the Southern and this year Southeastern Kentucky gets the bulk order. The Southern order means much to us here he says.

The L. and N. takes about 40 cars per day from this field, 15 of which are for their own use.

W. N. Duell says the outlook for cars is bright. Yesterday the Southern had 90 cars in the field and the L. and N. 75.

All the housewives of Middlesboro are invited by the Home Economics section of the Woman's Club to attend a pure food demonstration at 2 o'clock Monday afternoon at Chambers Grocery.

Beginning promptly at 2 o'clock a representative of the Armour Packing Co., will give a meat demonstration. He will begin by explaining the four qualities of a beef and will answer any questions concerning special cuts and meats. Last year, a similar explanation was held for the women of Middlesboro. C. E. Huff, who supervised the work at that time says the women profited by the advice. This, he says, was quite evident in the manner in which they purchased their meats and the intelligence they displayed in ordering special cuts.

Other food demonstrations will be made. Hot coffee and biscuits will be served throughout the afternoon. The demonstration, other than the meat lecture, will continue until the evening. All club members are asked to bring a contribution of jelly or preserves for the Thanksgiving basket which will be sent the Grace Nettleton Home.

Mrs. Helen Forrester is chairman of the Home Economics section of the club.

PROHIBITION MAKES
GIANT STRIKES IN EUROPE, SHOWN

Though None of Countries Yet Bone Dry, Canvass Reveals Many Restrictions And Local Options.

PROGRESS IN EUROPEAN COUNTRIES IS OUTLINED

By Milton Bronner

London, Nov. 25.—[When at the recent session of the Women's Christian Temperance Union in Philadelphia, that organization restated its aim of a liquorless world, a loud laugh went up in some wet quarters in America.

"You'll never make Europe dry!" these wets probably exclaimed.

But the pussyfoot movement, as it is called here, is making progress in Europe. It is not accomplishing much in the way of making countries bone-dry but it is bringing in restrictions and local option—and that was the way nation-wide bone-dryness started in America.

See for yourself what progress the dry movement has made on this continent.

Austria—Wet, but poverty of people is making for temperance. President Hainisch is a teetotaler.

Baltic Republics—Lithuania, Latvia and Estonia, are wet because they are rice and potato producing countries where much vodka is distilled, producing rich revenue. But temperance movement is on foot in Estonia.

Belgium—Distilled liquors cannot be sold in public houses.

Bulgaria—Local option law adopted under which many villages in rural sections have closed saloons. Czechoslovakia—Still wet but prohibition sentiment is growing because President Masaryk is a teetotaler while Premier Demosh writes articles in favor of temperance. But good Pilsener beer is still obtainable.

Finland—Europe's only bone-dry country since June 1, 11. Having trouble with booze smugglers. Poorer classes are said to have been benefitted. France—Absinthe prohibited.

Great Britain—Pubs only allowed to stay open about nine hours daily. Before the war they were open all day and night except from 1.30 a. m. to 5 a. m. Scotland has local option law.

Hungary—No temperance movement. Iceland—Passed a bone-dry law but Spain protested that if Iceland's market were closed to Spanish wines, Spain would close her markets to Iceland's fish. So Iceland had to admit wine or face national bankruptcy.

Italy—No prohibition movement.

Jugoslavia—Amistiey of health is fighting alcoholism and tuberculosis coupling them together.

Norway—Has prohibited distilled liquors and strong wines since Christmas, 116. This was introduced as a temporary law but Parliament and the people later ratified it as a permanent law.

Poland—Has local option law under which some rural districts have voted themselves dry.

Rumania—Worst of all Balkan countries from the standpoint of drunkenness and absence of temperance activities.

Russia—Distilled liquors once prohibited. Reports as to their present status vague and contradictory.

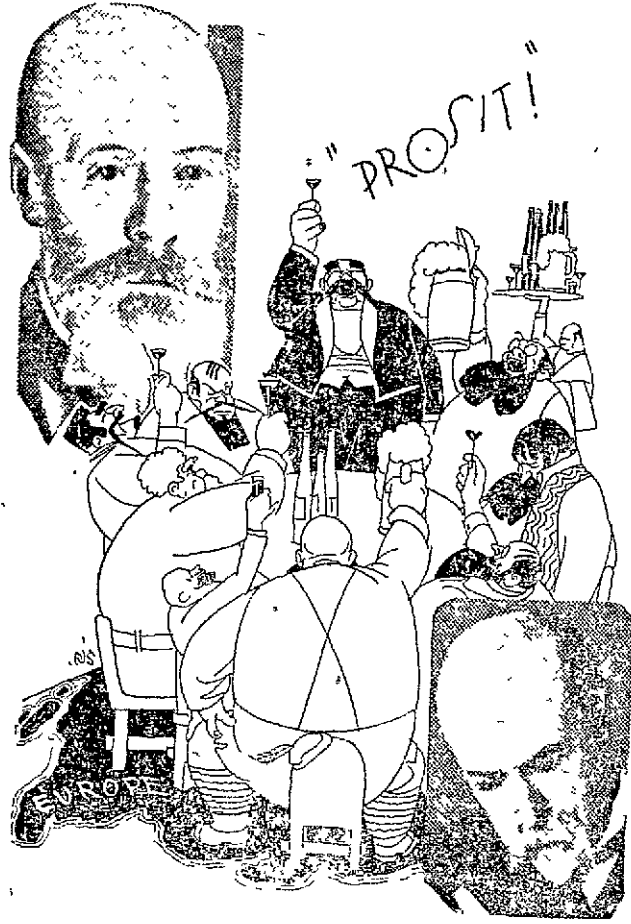

Spain—No restrictions whatever.

Sweden—Prohibition sentiment is August 27, resulted in small majority for wets. Majority all came from the cities while country districts voted dry. Local option law now asked. Under this 12 of 24 provinces probably will be voted dry.

Switzerland—Law adopted which suppresses the right of free distilling which peasants had enjoyed from the earliest times. Strong temperance move under way. Next year people will vote on local prohibition for distilled liquors.

Pineville Must Be Scared.

This afternoon about 3:30 the Yellow Jackets had a little excitement when three Pineville coaches slipped upon them to do some scouting. The boys chased the scout off the field. They wonder if Pineville is getting scared.

TWO MEN WHO ARE HELPING BY EXAMPLE TO MAKE EUROPE DRY: PRESIDENT MICHAEL HAINISCH OF AUSTRIA (ABOVE) AND PRESIDENT MASARYK OF CZECHOSLOVAKIA.

PLAY LAST NIGHT
IS WELL RECEIVED

Lucile Short, Kee Kinnaird and Graham Short are Stars—Net Proceeds Are $75.

"Much Ado About Betty," the dramatic comedy given by the Presbyterian Christian Endeavor last night, was highly appreciated by the audience who heard it. The parts, with no exceptions, were well-taken and the play held the interest from beginning to end. The net proceeds amounted to something like $75 and will be used to educate a boy at Lynn Bachmann school.

Lucile Short as the pretty movie actress was the favorite of the evening, but Kee Kinnaird, a hen-pecked husband, and Graham Short, black bell-boy, were decidedly the comedy hits, and they drew a laugh every time they appeared. Music by a violin quartet was enjoyed between acts.

The cast follows: Betty Campbell, heroine, Lucile Short.

Lizzie, Betty's Maid, Theo Earle.

Mr. E. Z. Ostrich, who has written a wonderful picture play, Mr. Geo. Schneider.

Lin Leonard, Betty's one best bet, Hugh Dean.

Aunt Winnie, Betty's chaperone, Blanche Hurst.

Major Jartrce, of Wichita, not only bent but crooked, Gregory Clelland.

Edith, a high school admirer of Betty, Elizabeth Clelland.

Jim, a high school senior, Henry Austin.

Riley, officer who always does his duty, Billie Faulkner.

Dugan, officer from the Emerald Isle, Billie Haynes.

Mrs. Diggins, a guest at the hotel, Irma Walker.

Daffodil Diggins, her daughter, Yes Ma'ma! Dorothy Sprague.

Miss Chizzle, one of the North Carolina Chizzles, Ada Eller.

Arch, a black bell-boy at the hotel, Graham Short.

Dr. McNutt, solid ivory from the neck up, Jack Crain.

Violet Ostrich, a film favorite, Ned's bride, Mary Frances Davidson.

BELIEVES M. H. S.
WILL WIN GAME

High School Flays Citizens For Lack of Faith in Team—Quotes Others Who Support It.

The following football story has been compiled by an M. H. S. boy as a summary of Middlesboro's chances in the Thanksgiving game:

The opinion of the result of the Pineville-Middlesboro football game just after the Stanford game was that M. H. S. was already beaten by a big score. But now, after a second thought and deeper consideration by people who understand circumstances, it is not looked upon in that manner. However, most of the bets are even money that Pineville beats M. H. S. by a score of more than 40 to 0 and three to one on Pineville.

When this game is played it will not be played between Pineville and Middlesboro but between Pineville and M. H. S. because Middlesboro has about ascertained her team. Of course you may give reasons why you have deserted and lost interest but no excuse team loses every time you should stick by them and in the future do what you can to help them win.

Nevertheless there are yet some staunch supporters who have never lost hope. Here is what some of them say:

Charles Smyth: "We are not beaten by a long shot yet and our boys are going to do what many are not expecting. I believe in them."

L. D. Hill: "Our boys have not realized the seriousness of the business they are in until now and, believe me, they are working for we have got to beat Pineville and we shall."

M. G. Hubbard: "I am still for the boys as strong as ever. We must win from Pineville."

Capt. MacWilliams says: "We are now practicing an entirely new team. There was a team before with no spirit but now we have a team which has real spirit and every man is doing his best. Training is being rigorously carried out by almost every man. Our players have developed real team work and the interference is improving. With such training and hard workouts and with the new team spirit we can not lose."

Coach Porter says: "We are going to fight from the time the first whistle blows until its all over. I believe in the boys and I know that they will give everything they have to make old M. H. S. victor."

Superintendent Bradner says: "I am believing in our team regardless of past work and I know they will win."

The writer of this article has seen the Yellow Jackets work out on the gridiron and can say that a wonderful Husband of Paternity Case Principal Surprises Former Spouse—Declares She Will Have Divorce Set Aside.

SAID PROFESSOR HAD PROMISED TO REMARRY HER

By Associated Press

HAMMOND, IND., Nov. 25.—Professor John P. Tiernan, South Bend, and Mrs. Blanch J. Brimmer-Hansell, of Iowa, were married today at Crown Point, Ind. Tiernan, who was divorced Thursday from his wife, Mrs. Augusta Tiernan, principal in the Tiernan-Poulin paternity case at South Bend, gave his age as 32. The bride is 24. The license for marriage was issued at Crown Point this morning and the couple immediately went to Justice Kemp who performed the ceremony. They left Crown Point immediately, without mentioning their destination.

By Associated Press

SOUTH BEND, Nov. 25.—Mrs. Tiernan when told of the marriage, of her former husband said she had frequently heard him speak of "Blanche," whom he said he some day expected to marry, but supposed his statement was made in jest and she paid no attention.

Mrs. Tiernan, who said she had agreed to permit her husband to get a divorce from her on cross, declared she understood they would remarry. Now she said she would try to have the divorce decree set aside.

HANSTELL, Iowa, Nov. 25.—Blanche Brimmer is the daughter of a Methodist minister here. She has been a widow a year. Her father, Rev. Chas. Hawn, said his daughter had been corresponding with Tiernan for some time.

WOULD PROMOTE
KENTENIA HIGHWAY

Bel Division of Association Organized Today—E. S. Helburn Made President.

The Bell County division of the Kentenia Highway Association was formed in Pineville this morning with E. S. Helburn as president, P. T. Atkins as secretary and T. F. Gibson as treasurer. The purpose of this association is to push the work of building the proposed straight cut highway from Cincinnati to Cumberland Gap whereby about one hundred miles is cut off.

The proposed road would run, in Kentucky, through Lexington, Richmond, Irvine, Beatyville, Booneville, Manchester, Barboursville, Pineville, Middlesboro and Cumberland Gap. The Kentenia Highway Association will advertise the road and promote it in every way possible, most particularly by getting counties to vote for its building bond issues which will be matched with state and federal aid.

The fiscal court has already decided to put $50,000 of Bell county's bond issue on this road, but they expect this sum to be matched with federal money.

A meeting of this association will be held at Irvine next Friday, December 1, at 2 p. m. at the Wallace Hotel, to discuss further plans. Major E. S. Helburn and Judge J. F. Bosworth will attend from here.

Improvement is shown in the team's play. There seems to be a different bunch of boys playing. Crabbing has ceased and team work is evident. A new quarterback is running the first team and a forty yard drop kicker is showing skill which he needs only to develop. An old town athlete is there on the sidelines helping educate his men. Men are switched to different positions so that they are enabled to play more than the one and these and many other things are making M. H. S. look good.

The high school is holding pep meetings regularly now organizing for this big event and creating spirit in school as well as in the team.

BAPTIST DELEGATE
SENDS APPRECIATION
FOR HOSPITALITY

The following paragraph is from one of the delegates of the Baptist General Association to his Middlesboro host:

"Our entire visit to Middlesboro was a continued feast of enjoyment because of the cordial hospitality extended to the visitors by the Baptists and citizens of the city, and we shall ever cherish the memory of their kindness and the visit to your city will be looked back upon as a bright spot in our lives. We enjoyed greatly the meeting of the association and the scenery in and around the city. The trip to Cumberland Gap, the climb up Pinnacle Mountain, the sunrise prayer meeting by Pinnacle Rock, the view of Fern Lake, and looking down on Cumberland Gap, and the vista out over and down on Cumberland Valley were surpassingly beautiful. The sunrise view from the top of the Pinnacle was a sight not soon to be forgotten. And we want to thank you and all the Middlesboro people for the opportunity of spending these pleasant days, with you."

EDUCATION WEEK
PROGRAM OUTLINED

American Legion, N. E. A., and Bureau of Education Ask For Co-Operation.

Washington, Nov. 23.—American Education week, to be celebrated all over the United States from December 3 to 9, inclusive is divided into six separate sections, a day being devoted to each department, Sunday, December 3, is known as For God and Country Day, on which ministers of all denominations are urged to preach a sermon on education, either morning or evening. All communities are urged to hold mass meetings. Requests for speakers may be made to the American Legion Posts throughout the country for meetings during the week.

Monday is American Citizenship Day, Tuesday will be devoted to Patriotism, Wednesday is School and Teacher Day, Thursday is to be given to a consideration of Literacy, Friday to Equality of Opportunity, and Saturday to Physical Education.

The American Legion, the National Education Association, and the United States Bureau of Education, which are all three cooperating in the celebration, are asking aid and assistance from the public. Churches, Chambers of Commerce, labor organizations, fraternal bodies, luncheon clubs, etc., are asked to urge the mayor to issue a proclamation setting aside this week as American Education Week, and asking the people to cooperate. Newspapers are requested to give all space possible to educational matters, articles, editorials, and news material, and merchants are requested to use window displays appropriate for the occasion and to devote as much space as possible to matters of education in their newspaper advertisements. Citizens everywhere are requested to ask the moving picture theatres to flash slides on the screen urging the people to visit the schools and study educational questions. At all public meetings held that week it is hoped space can be found for some one to talk a few minutes on the necessity of education. Cooperation with the educational officials and other patriotic, civic, and fraternal organizations by local American Legion post is asked, on the ground that the country looks to the American Legion to pave the way to patriotism and education—service to Nation, State and community.

The following dispatch from Cleveland, Tenn., clipped from today's Journal and Tribune, comes as a surprise to Middlesboro people who did not know that the Rev. Baldwin contemplated leaving here:

WORLD PROHIBITION CONFERENCE BEGINS

Anti-Alcohol Crusaders, From 22 Countries, 5600 in All Meet in Toronto.

By Associated Press

Toronto, Nov. 23.—A world-wide crusade for prohibition will find expression in Toronto during the next five days, for some 5000 delegates have assembled here to hold an anti-alcoholic conference under the auspices of the World League against Alcoholism. They have come from no less than 22 different countries, and their purpose is to attain by means of education and legislation, the total suppression throughout the world of alcoholism, which is the poisoning of body, germ-plasm, mind, conduct and society produced by the consumption of alcoholic beverages.

Representative of every known force in social reform, temperance organizations, churches, young people's societies, and Sunday schools. The gathering will mark the beginning of a new and intensified campaign against the liquor traffic, and it is expected that it will perfect complete plans for carrying on the international work. While it is being held under the auspices of the World League, the gathering will be five conventions in one—the World prohibition convention, Dominion of Canada prohibition convention, Ontario provincial prohibition convention, the World's Student Federation, and the International Enforcement Convention.

The latter convention will be attended by representatives of all the provinces of Canada, of the border states, and those particularly affected by rum-running, together with National, Provincial and State enforcement officers with a view to arriving at a mutual understanding that will end the present outrageous border situation.

In reviewing the work of the temperance forces in Canada for the suppression of the liquor traffic to a representative of the Canadian Press, Mr. Ben H. Spence, secretary of the Dominion Temperance Alliance and host of the great convention, expressed his confidence that the object of this organization was nearing its goal. Prohibition in Canada, he said, could never be effective while liquor is legally made and transported in any part of the dominion. National prohibition could not be made safe in any nation while an adjoining nation permitted the traffic, and the campaign must be carried on with renewed vigor and energy until liquor was eradicated in every land and every clime, and the world was made safe against the ravages of alcoholism in every possible form.

"This great movement has been given to us in Canada in trust," said Mr. Spence, "and so far as our experience will be of help to others, we are by our obligations bound to give it. This convention is the biggest thing ever put over in Canada, and the greatest the temperance advocates of the world have ever attempted. We in Canada are particularly proud that this momentous gathering was given to Canada and that Toronto was chosen as the city. It is a great honor to Canada and Toronto. But after all, in the slogan of the league, 'The world is my country, and all mankind my brothers.'

OF COAL CARS HERE

Officials Agree to Allow Log Mountain Corporation 80 Cars Per Day, Almost Double Number Now Received.

MINING OUTLOOK FOR
IMMEDIATE FUTURE BRIGHT

The Southern Railway will receive 80 cars of coal per day from this field and cars will be furnished for shipping according to arrangements made this week by the Log Mountain Coal Company and officials of the Southern. W. N. Duell, C. R. Preston and Southern officials Slocum, were in Middlesboro Monday.

This is the largest single order taken in this field and a large increase in the number of cars from the Southern. The original order from the railway made in July called for 50 cars. At one time this field furnished the Southern 100 cars per day. Major E. S. Helburn says this large shipment was lost on account of labor trouble. From the present outlook he says it will be entirely possible for his company to live up to contract.

Last year, Major Helburn says, the Virginia and West Virginia fields furnished the bulk of coal to the Southern and this year Southeastern Kentucky gets the bulk order. The Southern order means much to us here he says.

The L. and N. takes about 40 cars per day from this field, 15 of which for their own use.

W. N. Duell says the outlook for cars is bright. Yesterday the Southern had 90 cars in the field and the L. and N. 75.

Home Economics Section of Woman's

Club In Charge Of Special

Showing Monday.

All the housewives of Middlesboro are invited by the Home Economics section of the Women's Club to attend a pure food demonstration at 2 o'clock Monday afternoon at Chambers Grocery.

Beginning promptly at 2 o'clock a representative of the Armour Packing Co., will give a meat demonstration. He will begin by explaining the four qualities of a beef and will answer any questions concerning special cuts and meats. Last year a similar explanation was held for the women of Middlesboro. C. E. Huff, who supervised the work at that time says the women profited by the advice. This, he says, was quite evident in the manner in which they purchased their meats and the intelligence they displayed in ordering special cuts.

Other food demonstrations will be made. Hot coffee and biscuits will be served throughout the afternoon. The demonstration, other than the meat lecture, will continue until the evening.

All club members are asked to bring a contribution of jelly or preserves for the Thanksgiving basket which will be sent the Grace Nettleton Home.

Mrs. Helen Forrester is chairman of the Home Economics section of the club.

PROHIBITION MAKES
EUROPE, SHOWN

Though None of Countries Yet Banned Dry, Canvass Reveals Many Restrictions And Local Options.

PROGRESS IN EUROPEAN COUNTRIES IS OUTLINED

By Milton Brommer

London, Nov. 25.—When at the recent session of the Women's Christian Temperance Union in Philadelphia, that organization restated its aim of a liquorless world, a loud laugh went up in some wet quarters in America.

"You'll never make Europe dry!" these wets probably exclaimed.

But the pussyfoot movement, as it is called here, is making progress in Europe. It is not accomplishing much in the way of making countries bone-dry but it is bringing in restrictions and local option—and that was the way nation-wide bone-dryness started in America.

See for yourself what progress the dry movement has made on this continent.

Austria—Wet, but poverty of people is making for temperance. President Hainisch is a teetotaler.

Baltic Republics—Lithuania, Latvia and Estonia, are wet because they are rye and potato producing countries where much vodka is distilled, producing rich revenue. But temperance movement is on foot in Esthonia.

Belgium—Distilled liquors cannot be sold in public houses.

Bulgaria—Local option law adopted under which many villages in rural sections have closed saloons.

Czechoslovakia—Still wet but prohibition sentiment is growing because President Masaryk is a teetotaler while Premier Demess writes articles in favor of temperance. But good Pilsener beer is still obtainable.

Finland—Europe's only bone-dry country since June 1, 11. Having trouble with booze smugglers. Poorer classes are said to have been benefited.

France—Absinthe prohibited.

Great Britain—Pubs only allowed to stay open about nine hours daily. Before the war they were open all day and night except from 1:30 a. m. to 5 a. m. Scotland has local option law.

Hungary—No temperance movement.

Iceland—Passed a bone-dry law but Spain protested that if Iceland's market were closed to Spanish wines, Spain would close her markets to Iceland's fish. So Iceland had to admit wine or face national bankruptcy.

Italy—No prohibition movement.

Jugoslavia—Ministry of health is fighting alcoholism and tuberculosis by coupling them together.

Norway—Has prohibited distilled liquors and strong wines since Christmas, 116. This was introduced as a temporary law but Parliament and the people later ratified it as a permanent law.

Poland—has local option law under which some rural districts have voted themselves dry.

Rumania—Worst of all Balkan countries from the standpoint of drunkenness and absence of temperance activities.

Russia—Distilled liquors once prohibited. Reports as to their present status vague and contradictory.

Spain—No restrictions whatever.

Sweden—Prohibition sentiment is August 27, resulted in small majority for wets. Majority all came from the cities while country districts voted dry. Local option law now asked. Under this 12 of 24 provinces probably will be voted dry.

Switzerland—Law adopted which suppresses the right of free distilling which peasants had enjoyed from the earliest times. Strong temperance move under way. Next year people will vote on local prohibition for distilled liquors.

Pineville Must Be Scared.

This afternoon about 3:30 the Yellow Jackets had a little excitement when three Pineville coaches slipped upon them at that time says the women profited by the advice. This, he says, was quite evident in the manner in which they purchased their meats and the intelligence they displayed in ordering special cuts.

PLAY LAST NIGHT
IS WELL RECEIVED

Lucile Short, Kee Kinnaird and Graham Short are Stars—Net Proceeds Are $75.

"Much Ado About Betty," the dramatic comedy given by the Presbyterian Christian Endeavor last night, was highly appreciated by the audience who heard it. The parts, with no exceptions, were well-taken and the play held the interest from beginning to end. The net proceeds amounted to something like $75 and will be used to educate a boy at Lynn Bachmann school.

Lucile Short as the pretty movie actress was the favorite of the evening, but Kee Kinnaird, a hen-pecked husband, and Graham Short, black bell-boy, were decidedly the comedy hits, and they drew a laugh every time they appeared. Music by a violin quartet was enjoyed between acts.

The cast follows:
Betty Campbell, heroine, Lucile Short.

Lizzie, Betty's Maid, Theo Earle.

Mr. E. Z. Ostrich, who has written a wonderful picture play, Mr. Geo. Schenider.

Lia Leonard, Betty's one best bet.

BELIEVES M. H. S.
WILL WIN GAME

High School Plays Citizens For Lack of Faith in Team—Quotes Others Who Support It.

The following football story has been compiled by an M. H. S. boy as a summary of Middlesboro's chances in the Thanksgiving game:

The opinion of the result of the Pineville-Middlesboro football game just after the Standard game was that M. H. S. was already beaten by a big score. But now, after a second thought and deeper consideration by people who understand circumstances, it is not looked upon in that manner. However, most of the bets are even money that Pineville beats M. H. S. by a score of more than 40 to 0 and three to one on Pineville.

When this game is played it will not be played between Pineville and Middlesboro but between Pineville and M. H. S. because Middlesboro has about deserted her team. Of course you may give reasons why you have deserted and lost interest but no excuse team loses every time you should stick by them and in the future do what you can to help them win.

Nevertheless there are yet some staunch supporters who have never lost hope. Here is what some of them say:

Charles Smyth: "We are not beaten by a long shot yet and our boys are going to do what many are not expecting. I believe in them."

L. D. Hill: "Our boys have not realized the seriousness of the business they are in until now and, believe me, they are working for we have got to beat Pineville and we shall."

M. G. Hubbard: "I am still for the boys as strong as ever. We must win from Pineville."

Capt. MacWilliams says: "We are now practicing an entirely new team. There was a team before with no spirit, it but now we have a team which has real spirit and every man is doing his best. Training is being rigorously carried out by almost every man. Our players have developed real team work and the interference is improving. With such training and hard workouts and with the new team spirit we can not lose."

Coach Porter says: "We are going to fight from the time the first whistle blows until its all over. I believe in the boys and I know that they will give everything they have to make old M. H. S. victor."

WOULD PROMOTE
KENTONIA HIGHWAY

Bell Division of Association Organized Today—E. S. Helburn Made President.

The Bell County division of the Kentonia Highway Association was formed in Pineville this morning with E. S. Helburn as president, P. T. Atkins as secretary and T. F. Gibson as treasurer. The purpose of this association is to push the work of building the proposed straight cut highway from Cincinnati to Cumberland Gap whereby about one hundred miles is cut off.

The proposed road would run, in Kentucky, through Lexington, Richmond, Irvine, Beattyville, Booneville, Manchester, Barbourville, Pineville, Middlesboro and Cumberland Gap.

The Kentonia Highway Association will advertise the road and promote it in every way possible, most particularly by getting counties to vote for its building bond issues which will be matched with state and federal aid.

The fiscal court has already decided to put $50,000 of Bell county's bond issue on this road, but they expect this sum to be matched with federal money.

A meeting of this association will be held at Irvine next Friday, December 1, at 2 p. m., at the Wallace Hotel, to discuss further plans. Major E. S. Helburn and Judge J. F. Bosworth will attend from here.

Improvement is shown in the team's play. There seems to be a different bunch of boys playing. Crabbing has ceased and team work is evident. A new quarterback is running the first team and a forty yard drop kicker is showing skill which he needs only to develop. An old town athlete is there on the sidelines helping educate his roe Men are switched to different positions so that they are enabled to play more than the one and these and many other things are making M. H. S. look good.

The high school is holding pep meetings regularly now organizing for this big event and creating spirit in school as well as in the team.

BAPTIST DELEGATE
SENDS APPRECIATION
FOR HOSPITALITY

The following paragraph is from one of the delegates of the Baptist General Association to his Middlesboro host:

"Our entire visit to Middlesboro was a continued feast of enjoyment because of the cordial hospitality extended to the visitors by the Baptists and citizens of the city, and we shall ever cherish the memory of their kindness and the visit to your city will be looked back upon as a bright spot in our lives. We enjoyed greatly the meeting of the association and the scenery in and around the city. The trip to Cumberland Gap, the climb up Pinnacle Mountain, the sunrise prayer meeting by Pinnacle Rock, the view of Fern Lake, and looking down on Cumberland Gap, and the vista out over and down on Cumberland Valley were surpassingly beautiful. The sunrise view from the top of the Pinnacle was a sight not soon to be forgotten. And we want to thank you and all the Middlesboro people for the opportunity of spending these pleasant days with you."

EDUCATION WEEK
PROGRAM OUTLINED

American Legion, N. E. A., and Bureau of Education Ask For Co-Operation.

Washington, Nov. 23.—American Education week, to be celebrated all over the United States from December 8 to 9, inclusive is divided into six separate sections, a day being devoted to each department, Sunday, December 3, is known as For God and Country Day, on which ministers of all denominations are urged to preach a sermon on education, either morning or evening. All communities are urged to hold mass meetings. Requests for speakers may be made to the American Legion Posts throughout the country for meetings during the week.

Monday is American Citizenship Day, Tuesday will be devoted to Patriotism, Wednesday is School and Teacher Day, Thursday is to be given to a consideration of Illiteracy, Friday to Equality of Opportunity, and Saturday to Physical Education.

The American Legion, the National Education Association, and the United States Bureau of Education, which are all three cooperating in the celebration, are asking aid and assistance from the public. Churches, Chambers of Commerce, labor organizations, fraternal bodies, luncheon clubs, etc., are asked to urge the mayor to issue a proclamation setting aside this week as American Education Week, and asking the people to cooperate.

Newspapers are requested to give all space possible to educational matters, articles, editorials, and news material, and merchants are requested to use window displays appropriate for the occasion and to devote as much space as possible to matters of education in their newspaper advertisements. Citizens everywhere are requested to ask the moving picture theatres to flash slides on the screen urging the people to visit the schools and study educational questions. At all public meetings held that week it is hoped space can be found for some one to talk a few minutes on the necessity of education. Cooperation with the educational officials and other patriotic, civic, and fraternal organizations by local American Legion post is asked, on the ground that the country looks to the American Legion to pave the way to patriotism and education—service to Nation, State and community.

A THOUGHT

Rest in the Lord, and wait patiently for him.—Psalm 37:3.

A life without a purpose is a land without a map. This day let me make a guide for myself, every day we ought to renew our purpose, saying to ourselves, beginning for what we have hitherto done is naught.—Thomas a Kempis.

CONDITION OF THE SWINGING BRIDGE

A month or so ago the city council took up the matter of the swinging bridge across the canal back of the school building and voted that it was unsafe. They further decided that it should be repaired. The matter was referred to a committee which reported that a concrete bridge across there would cost a lot of money. The committee was asked to investigate further and is, evidently, still investigating.

In the meanwhile the bridge hangs there with half of the planks from it gone and in an absolutely dangerous condition. This condition, however, adds more zest to walking over for the school children, and one never goes by there at school recess or after school hours but what he may see a group of more children on that bridge. They make the hazardous journey across, holding on to the side of the decrepit old bridge, seemingly quite pleased with the feat. Often several of them are on there and a favorite sport is rocking the bridge.

Now no unsafe rating in the world could keep those children off the bridge. Rather, it only makes them more eager to get on it. Surely it is the business of the council or the school board to remedy this situation. If they do not intend to repair the bridge or build a new one they should see that this one is taken down or fixed so that the children can not get on it.

GETS RESULTS

Rubber heels now are on 60 of each 100 pairs of shoes worn by men. Such is the estimate going the rounds in the shoe industry.

It is not surprising, if you have noticed how many wear rubber heels. But maybe you remember back only a few years when rubber heels were unusual.

What brought them into popularity? The answer is—Advertising.

Three-fourths of the rubber heels sold are for men's shoes. This is because most of the advertising has been directed at men.

One of these days some wise manufacturer of rubber heels will notice this. Then he'll call in the advertising man and his staff of writers and artists.

Campaigns will follow and soon women will be wearing just as many rubber heels as men.

It is all a matter of advertising—the most powerful force in the sale of goods. The ideal combination is advertising, which reaches consumers' brains through their eyes and personal salesmanship which reaches less vividly through the ears.

Our present standard of living is largely the creation of advertising. For advertising creates the demand, makes people want the thing advertised. When the lure becomes powerful enough, they hustle about and get the money to obtain what they want.

Advertising thus spurs sales. It also stimulates production—both of the things advertised and the things that have to be done on a bigger scale to obtain money for purchasing advertised wares.

There is a new thought for you—that advertising is a definite agency of production. Most of us have been thinking

CLUTCH OF ICE

The fish in this pen-picture by Artist Satterfield is a salmon trout, most beautiful form of life in Canada.

This salmon—Ojibway Indians call him Namaycush—is sportively leaping from the water, getting exercise and expressing his joy at being alive. He is near shore, in shallow water, where he is guarding the eggs recently laid by his mate.

Ice already is forming along the edges of that shore. Soon the lake will freeze over, solid and thick, like a burial under the soil. But when spring comes and the ice melts, the salmon will leap into the air again. And the eggs will have hatched into thousands of young salmon, instinctively following one leader.

Such is the whole spirit of winter.

ing of it merely as a medium of salesmanship.

Advertising is what is enabling us to buy.

It creates the demand. And the demand induces us to work harder to get the money to spend. If all advertising were abruptly discontinued, the American standard of living would quickly drop to the levels of grandpa's day.

Read the ads. They are a part of the news, telling the intimate story of the average American's inner desires. The real history of civilization is written in ads.

THE CAUSE

By Barton Braley

(The people have too much money.— Vice President Coolidge.)

For years we've wondered what it was that caused the troubles of this nation. We're agitated, altered laws. And done much deep investigation To find the cause of various ills. With which the people were afflicted. The sources of these, however, till just recently was undepicted.

It took the mastodontic brain Of Coolidge to reveal the reason. And logically to explain. Why, season after dreary season, We suffered from a lot of woes Which made our tempers far from sunny;

The cause, says Coolidge, I'll disclose. The people all have too much money!

The folks who fancied they were poor. And fighting for mere food and shelter. And clothes, were really on a tour Of spending money, helter-skelter. Yes, we were getting overfat From too much milk and too much honey.

So now we know where we are at; The people all have too much money!

We laugh, but underneath our mirth.

LEGION COMMANDER URGES RESPONSE TO RED CROSS

Indianapolis, Ind., Nov. 24.—Alvin Owsley, National Commander of the American Legion, has appealed to all the million of the Legion and to all good American citizens to aid the American Red Cross—The Greatest Mother of Them All—in the organization's annual Membership Roll Call. Out of the memory of what the Red Cross did in time of war, and its activities in times of peace wherever disaster or distress occur, Commander Owsley has issued the following public statement:

"I am happy to heartily endorse the annual membership roll call of the American Red Cross, which began Armistice Day. Certainly, loyal Americans desire to support this commendable undertaking."

"The American Red Cross is an American institution, and has made good in every emergency. It deserves the loyal and generous support of all true citizens. The Red Cross is known to the world over by its good works. I sincerely hope that every Legionnaire will do his best to make successful the membership roll call this year."

BEGIN HERE TODAY

After 10 years of married life, tedium had become intolerable for JOHN BARRETT, successful architect. He believed that his wife, ANITA, neither loved him nor could give him the sympathy and appreciation which he required. He decided to start life anew with MYRA DEAN, a woman of the world.

Myra objects to figuring in a divorce case, but Barrett goes to REX WARREN, a lawyer and an old friend of Anita and of himself. The two men quarrel when Barrett suggests that Warren, because of his former love for Anita, should help him secure his freedom.

GO ON WITH THE STORY

Anita sank into a chair, slowly weighed down by increasing complication. How cruel life could be! It was not bad enough that this wretched parting must punish the children, John and herself, but here Rex Warren in it too—her girlhood friend, the old-time sweetheart who wasn't quite a sweetheart because circumstances had separated them, and now her adviser, her rock and stay.

A tap at the door startled her. Rex. "I came back to tell you not to do the very thing I find you doing. Anita—I didn't say what I did to add to your problems, but to help you with them. I am your friend. Perhaps I shouldn't have said the rest of it. Let it be the least of your considerations. We are confronted with the immediate present and future. If Barrett should force the issue publicly—give or stage grounds for divorce—what do you mean to do?"

"Will he do that?"
"I think so. He wants to bring it on."

things to a crisis.
Can't we wait until he—does something—takes some definite step—
"You know how he feels, Anita. Isn't that enough for you? Or shall we play whatever tune he wants, and make you dance to it?"
His harsh challenge whipped back the color into her face.
"If only he and I were concerned in this thing, he'd play no tune. I'm thinking of the others, Rex—the children and you and—the entire outcome of things if—"

"Let's get rid of the 'ifs.' Have I your permission to ask Barrett his next step?"

Anita hesitated wearily, then nodded. "I suppose so."

Warren stepped to the telephone, called Barrett's club and got him. "Warren speaking. I am authorized to ask what precisely is your next step?"

Anita hid her face in her hands feeling like a person sinking in the sea, too numb to grasp a life rope.

Warren presently hung up the receiver.

"He is leaving tomorrow—for Europe, or some other place. I couldn't catch just what he said. He will be gone long enough to establish desertion."

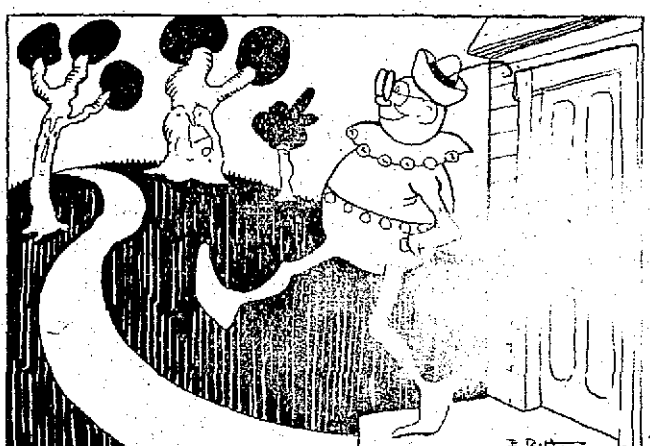

Slowly Anita looked up, lifted her chin, straightened herself, rose. She seemed utterly changed and dead.

"So he is going," she said slowly, "with Myra Dean to the Bahamas. Yes, I know she is going tomorrow. You will find it in the Times Herald. And Rex, you will have to help me, there is no going back now."

Adventures of The Twins

By Olive Roberts Barton

Mr. Tingaling hooked his magic glasses behind his ears and started off.

THE WRONG PACKAGE

"Ha, ha, ha, ha," laughed Mr. Tingaling, the fat, jolly landlord of the Land of Dear Knows Where.

The Land of Dear Knows Where is a big place, for it takes in Whispering Forest, Bright Meadow, Old Orchard, Lily Pond, Ripple Creek, and ever so many other places, just as the United States includes a lot of states.

Well Mr. Tingaling was the landlord of all of them and he was laughing. He was laughing because he was happy and he was happy because he'd got a present.

Nancy and Nick had left it for him at his house in the Blueberry Patch.

And here's what the present was. A pair of magical glasses that could see through a stone wall or a mad bank, or anything. A most useful thing for a landlord whose tenants sometimes pretended they were not at home when he went for his rent.

"Well, well, well!" smiled Tingaling. "I'll put these on and go to Corny Coon's house right away. I've nearly run his door bell out of joint, but he never answers it. I'll bet he's home all right but he doesn't wish to see me. Now that I have my magic glasses we'll soon find out!"

So saying, Mr. Tingaling hooked his magic glasses behind his ears and started off.

"Wig, what's this?" he cried suddenly. "I can't see a thing! Where did all this fog come from? The sun was out like a bon-fire a minute ago."

He didn't know that the fog was in his glasses. He had gotten the smoked glasses by mistake—the glasses intended for Buskins, the apple tree fairy.

TODAY'S RECIPES

PLAIN LOAF

By Bertha E. Shapleigh of Columbia University.

1 pint liquid milk or water (or both)

1-4 to 1 yeast cake (depending on time given the dough to rise. 1-4 yeast cake 12 hours; 1 yeast cake 5 hours.)

1-4 cup lukewarm water

2 tablespoons lard or any preferred fat

2 tablespoons sugar

2 teaspoons salt

6 1-2 cups flour

Slad liquid, pour it over salt, sugar and fat. When cooled to a lukewarm temperature add yeast which has soaked in quarter cup lukewarm water.
Add three cups of flour all at once, and stir and mix to a smooth batter. Add three more cups of flour for kneading the dough. Knead dough until smooth, place in pan, closely cover and let rise until doubled in bulk. Take onto board, shape into loaves—place in greased pans, let rise until light, and bake 40 to 60 minutes.

MAY EXCHANGE SAVINGS STAMPS FOR CERTIFICATES

Postmaster Chas. E. Cook today pointed out that although the 1918 series of War Savings Stamps do not mature until January 1, 1923, the holders of these stamps are now privileged to exchange them at their face value of $5.00 each for Treasury Savings Certificates which will mature five years from January 1, 1923.

Treasury Savings Certificates are issued in denominations of $1000; $100 and $25, costing $820, $82 and $20.50 each, respectively.

Postmaster Cooke further stated that it was his opinion that a majority of the owners of the 1918 stamps would take advantage of the government's offer to exchange them for Treasury Savings Certificates in order to eliminate the possibility of any loss of the original investment in the 1918 War Savings Stamps.

All details in connection with the foregoing exchange can be secured at the local post office.

RED ROSE TROOP TO FILL THANKSGIVING BASKETS

WILL THE CLUB WOMEN MAKE SPANKING A CRIME

Admonition or Chastisement

BY JOHN O'DONNELL

New York, Nov. 30.—Have parents an inherent right to punish their children?

"They have," decides Justice Salmon of the Court of Appeals Sessions. "They haven't," retorts the Alliance of Women's Clubs of Brooklyn, "and if Justice Salmon's decision gives parents a legal right to inflict corporal punishment, we women are going to see that such a medieval law is wiped from the statute books."

Thus the hands that rock Brooklyn cradles have decided the rod must be spared. If necessary, the 48 associated women's clubs with their 10,000 members who have already taken official action on Justice Salmon's decision are ready to carry the matter to the State Federation of Women's Clubs and make corporal punishment a campaign issue.

Why "Caning" Must Go

These are the reasons why corporal punishment must go, according to Mrs. R. C. Talbot Perkins, president of the Alliance of Woman's Clubs of Brooklyn:

ONE: Because corporal punishment is brutal, a relic of the dark ages, entirely out of harmony with humanitarian principles.

TWO: Because it makes children worse, not better.

THREE: Because it injures a child morally by developing deceit. Fear of whippings will destroy frankness and lead children to lie.

FOUR: Because beating involves danger of injuring a child's health.

FIVE: Because whipping is a sign of perversion in the individual who inflicts it.

SIX: Because it is contrary to all the true instincts of parenthood. Even animals do not punish their young by physical brutality.

How It All Started

The issue has developed from the case of an 11-year-old child found strapped to a wash-tub by padlocked straps. The child, according to testimony, had been beaten by its parents with the buckle ends of belts.

The child was rescued by agents of a children's society who had the parents into court. The parents were discharged by Justice Salmon in a decision in which the inherent right of parents to punish their children was announced.

Will Make It Crime

"If the law gives this inherent right we shall see that the laws will be passed taking it away," declares Mrs. Perkins.

"We are going to make it a crime for a parent to inflict corporal punishment."

Years ago, husbands had a legal right to beat their wives with a stick provided the stick was no thicker than the thumb.

This right was not inherent and husbands have been deprived of it by law. So will parents be deprived of their right to punish children.

"The child of today will not stand correction. It must be ruled by love and reason."

What Do You Think?

Should corporal punishment of children by parents be abolished by law and made a crime?

Or has a father or mother an inherent right to punish his or her child? Does admonition or kindly reproof produce better results in child training than beating or caning?

Or are there times when a session with father in the woodshed is the only remedy to make rebellious youth respect parenthood authority?

These very questions have aroused a stormy wrangle between a Brooklyn judge and the Alliance of Women's Clubs of Brooklyn. They threaten to become a campaign issue.

Queen Elizabeth was the first sovereign to use a fork, and a clergyman of her time preached a sermon against it, saying Providence gave us our fingers to eat with.

CAR LACK HITS KENTUCKY COAL

Warm Weather Favors Consumers—Only Relief.

By Associated Press

Chicago, Nov. 22.—Expectation that some coal operators would recoup their losses in the recent coal strike through increased prices—a belief given wide publicity at the end of the strike when one or two operators were quoted to that effect, has failed to materialize, according to a survey of fuel conditions based on statements of state fuel and railway commission officials and coal operators in middle western states.

The wide publicity, combined with an unusually warm autumn, discouraged drying by domestic consumers to such an extent that there has been a noticeable drop in prices in many states. This is particularly noted in those coal producing areas where the freight rates for short hauls are not a major factor in setting the retail prices.

Typical of the general trend, according to Robert McGill, state fuel administrator of Illinois, are prices at the central Illinois mines. Immediately after the strike the operators quoted screenings their lowest grade of coal, at from $3.25 to $3.75 at the pit mouth. Last week central Illinois screenings were offered as low as $1.50, orders to average 50 per cent production.

Similar price reductions are reported from several states in Kansas dealers are selling coal at one to two dollars under last year's prices, a summary of the middle western fuel situation as told by state and coal association officials shows.

The coal situation in Kentucky is not acute except for railroad car shortage. Mild weather has caused reserve supplies to increase because of decreased demand, while the return of cars to the Louisville and Nashville railroad will further increase transportation facilities.

Warm weather in Indiana has decreased the demand for coal and there has been a slight drop in prices from the post-strike peak while Ohio reports indicate that the state regulation of fuel prices has checked a famine and stabilized prices.

Oklahoma and Texas are well supplied with coal but in the latter state the railroad commission looks forward to a possible shortage, despite the use of natural gas oil and lignite for fuel. In the former state a lack of cars is enforcing idleness among the miners.

Minnesota, North and South Dakota and Wisconsin report a sufficient supply on hand and these states available to the Great Lakes are depending on an increased haul owing to the expected open season in lake traffic.

Kansas, Iowa, Illinois, Michigan, Missouri and Nebraska all report a sufficient supply on hand but in several of these states, mine operations are crippled by a lack of railroad cars.

TRUST COMPANIES RESOURCES MORE

Aggregate Deposits For Year Exceed Billion First Time—Kentucky Assets Increase.

Substantial increases in trust company resources both for the state and the country are shown by "Trust Companies of the United States" the annual publication of the United States Mortgage and Trust company of New York, just issued for 1922. The figures are of exceptional interest in that 1922 marks the 100th year of trust company service in the United States.

The total resources for the year ending June 30, were $12,739,620,733, as against $12,323,430,513 last year, and aggregate deposits for the first time exceeded $10,000,000,000.

Kentucky reported combined assets of $75,500,478, for a gain of over $8,000,000, President John W. Platten of the United States Mortgage and Trust Company, in commenting on the year's progress, says:

This, the twentieth annual edition of "Trust Companies of the United States," is published during the centennial year of trust company activities in this country, the first grant of proprietary powers to a corporation having been made in 1882.

"The position of the trust companies, considered in the light of their development since that time gives every promise that their influence will continue in increasing degree during the new century."

"Trust Company resources in the United States for the year ending June 30, 1922, were $12,739,620,733, thus establishing a new high record, and effectually offsetting the loss shown in 1920 compared with 1920. The total exceeds that of last year by over $440,000,000 and is greater by $287,743,000 from the previous high mark of 1920."

BARGAIN THEORY EDUCATION RAPPED

Teacher Says College Now Social Experience—No Discipline or Direction.

By Associated Press

Kansas City, Mo., Nov. 25.—The present day bargain counter theory of education—the theory that education should be made attractive to the student—has resulted in a heterogeneous mass of unrelated subjects, Prof. Herbert S. Hadley of the University of Colorado, told members of the Missouri State Teachers' association here today.

Professor Hadley declared there is something seriously wrong with the present educational system and added that he believed the trouble is due to a system of "educational coddling" by which students decide on their courses of study instead of being required to take what the experience of centuries has shown to be the most valuable for training, disciplining and developing the mind.

"The classics have been minimized in importance," he said, "and mathematics, history and philosophy are following in their wake. College education has come to be regarded by many as a social experience. We should go back to fundamentals in the work of education and, instead of trying to coddle and please, we should strive to discipline, train and direct."

"If the present generation stands the strain to which their morals and mental development are subjected by the movie and the automobile, with the spirit of dash and irresponsibility with the meretricious influences which they exert, then we must conclude that the young men and women of the day have inherited mental and moral qualities which give us hopeful assurance of the future."

The Ladies of Our Congress

LYCEUM LECTURERS TO HOLD MEETING

By Associated Press

Washington, Nov. 31.—President Harding tentatively has accepted an invitation to make an address at a lyceum conference to be held here December 7, 8 and 9 under the direction of the International Lyceum Chautauqua Association, of which he is the honorary president.

Those in charge of the conference said today they hoped to have the president to speak at the opening session and to have Georges Clemenceau, former premier of France, as a speaker at the second session.

THOUSANDS VISIT CAPITOL ON SIGHT-SEEING TOURS

By Associated Press

Frankfort, Ky., Nov. 23.—More than 4,000 persons have been visiting the State Capitol here monthly since the register of visitors has been placed in the building, according to George L. Lewis, official guide. Approximately 400 visitors have registered at the Capitol since the opening of books, April 8, according to Mr. Lewis. The register does not include the hands who monthly come to attend to business at the Capitol, Mr. Lewis said.

Visitors from all countries come here to inspect the new building, they usually are quite lavish in their praise of the structure, according to Mr. Lewis.

Among the recent visitors was Mr. F. Holmes of Batavia, Ill., who has been making a tour of the United States visiting all Capitol buildings and studying places of interest in Capitol cities. Mr. Holmes started his tour January 1 from Los Angeles, California, and since then he has been visiting 42 state capitols. He is celebrating his eightieth birthday traveling from capitol to capitol.

retort seemed to fall him. "Oh, because the thing isn't feasible, isn't practicable from any point of view," Chilcote stepped closer. "Why?" he insisted.

"Because it couldn't work, man! I couldn't hold for a dozen hours." Chilcote put out his hand and touched his arm. "But why?" he urged. "Why? Give me one unanswerable reason."

Loder shook off the hand and laughed, but below his laugh lay a suggestion of the other's excitement. Again the scene stirred him against his sounder judgment; through his reply, when it came, was firm enough. "As for reasons—," he said. "There are a hundred, if I had time to name them. Take it, for the sake of supposition, that I were to accept your offer. I should take my place in your house at—let us say at dinner-time. You man gets me into your evening clothes, and there, at the very start, you have the first suspicion set up. He has probably known you for years—known you until every turn of your appearance, voice, and manner is far more familiar to him than it is to you. There are no eyes like a servant's."

"I have thought of that. My servant and my secretary can both be changed. I will do the thing thoroughly."

Loder glanced at him in surprise. The madness had more method than he had believed. Then, as he still looked, a fresh idea struck him, and he laughed.

"You have entirely forgotten one thing," he said. "You can hardly dismiss your wife."

"My wife doesn't count."

Again Loder laughed. "I'm afraid I scarcely agree. The complications would be slightly—slightly—" He paused.

Chilcote's latent irritability broke out suddenly. "Look here," he said, "this isn't a chaffing matter. It may be moonshine to you, but it's reality to me."

Again Loder took his face between his hands.

"Don't ridicule the idea. I'm in dead earnest."

Loder said nothing.

"Think—think it over before you refuse."

For a moment Loder remained motionless; then he rose suddenly, pushing back his chair.

"Tush, man! You don't know what you say. The fact of your being married bars it. Can't you see that?"

Again Chilcote caught his arm.

"You misunderstand," he said. "You mistake the position. I tell you my wife and I are nothing to each other. She goes her way; I go mine. We have our own friends, our own rooms. Marriage, actual marriage, doesn't enter the question. We meet occasionally at meals, and at other people's houses; sometimes we go out together for the sake of appearances; beyond that, nothing. If you take up my life, nobody in it will trouble you less than Eve—I can promise that."

He laughed unsteadily.

Loder's face remained unmoved.

"Even granting that," he said, "the thing is still impossible."

"Why?"

"There is the house. The position there would be untenable. A man is known there as he is known in his own club." He drew away from Chilcote's touch.

"Very possibly. Very possibly." Chilcote laughed quickly and excitedly. "But what club is without its eccentric member? I am glad you spoke of that. I am glad you raised that point. It was a long time ago that I hit upon a reputation for moods as a shield for other things, and, the more useful it has become, the more I have let it grow. I tell you you might go down to the House tomorrow and spend the whole day without speaking to, even nodding to, a single man, and as long as you were to outward appearances no one could raise an eyebrow. In the same way you might vote in my place, ask a question, make a speech if you wanted to."

At the word speech Loder turned involuntarily. For a fleeting second the coldness of his manner dropped and his face changed.

Chilcote, with his nervous quickness of perception, saw the alteration, and a new look crossed his own face.

"Why not," he said quickly. "You once had ambitions in that direction. Why not renew the ambitions?"

"And drop back from the mountains into the gutter?" Loder smiled and slowly shook his head.

"Better to live for one day than to exist for a hundred!" Chilcote's voice trembled with anxiety. For the third time he extended his hand and touched the other.

This time Loder did not shake off the detaining hand; he scarcely seemed to feel its pressure.

"Look here," Chilcote's fingers tightened. "A little while ago you talked of influence. Here you can step into a position built by influence. You might do all you once hoped to do."

"Look here," Chilcote's fingers tightened. "A little while ago you talked of influence. Here you can step into a position built by influence. You might do all you once hoped to do."

"Precisely why it will succeed. People never suspect until they have a precedent. Will you consider it? At least consider it. Remember, if there is a risk, it is I who am running it. On your own showing, you have no position to jeopardize."

The other laughed curtly.

"Before I go to-night will you promise me to consider it?"

"No."

"Then you will send me your decision by wire tomorrow. I won't take your answer now."

Loder freed his arm abruptly. "Why not?" he asked.

Chilcote smiled nervously. "Because I know men—and men's temptations. We are all very strong till the quick is touched; then we all wince. It's morphia with one man, ambitions with another. In each case it's only a matter of sooner or later."

He laughed in his satirical, unstrung way, and held out his hand. "You have my address," he said. "Au revoir."

Loder pressed the hand and dropped it. "Good-bye," he said meaningly. Then he crossed the room quietly and held the door open. "Good-bye," he said again as the other passed him.

As he crossed the threshold, Chilcote paused. "An revoir," he corrected, with emphasis.

Until the last echo of his visitor's steps had died away Loder stood with his hand on the door; then, closing it quietly, he turned and looked round the room. For a considerable space he stood there as if weighing the merits of each object; then very slowly he moved to one of the bookshelves, drew out Mays Parliamentary Practice, and, carrying it to the desk, readjusted the lamp.

CHAPTER VI

ALL the next day Chilcote moved in a fever of excitement. Hot with hope one moment, cold with fever the next, he rushed with restless energy into every task that presented itself—only to drop it as speedily. Twice during the morning he drove to the entrance of Clifford's Inn, but each time his courage failed him and he returned to Grosvenor Square—to learn that the expected message from Loder had not come.

It was a wearing condition of mind; but at worst it was scarcely more than an exaggeration of what his state had been for months, and made but little obvious difference in his bearing or manner.

In the afternoon he took his place in the House, but, though it was his accepted him. He was always comely, particularly in his treatment of Chilcote, as the husband of his ward and godchild.

"Better, Chilcote?" he said, holding out his hand.

At the sound of the low, rather formal tones, so characteristic of the old statesman, a hundred memories rose to Chilcote's mind, a hundred hours, distasteful in the living and unbearable in the recollection; and with them the new flash of hope, the new possibility of freedom. In a sudden rush of confidence he turned to his leader.

"I believe I've found a remedy for my nerves," he said. "I—I believe I'm going to be a new man." He laughed with a touch of excitement.

Fraide pressed his fingers kindly. "That is right," he said. "That is right. I culled at Grosvenor Square this morning, but Eve told me your illness of the other day was not serious. She was very busy this morning—she could only spare me a quarter of an hour. She is indefatigable over the social side of your prospects, Chilcote. You owe her a large debt. A popular wife means a great deal to a politician."

The steady eyes of his companion disturbed Chilcote.

He drew away his hand.

"Eve is unique," he said, vaguely. Fraide smiled. "That is right," he said, again. "Admiration is too largely excluded from modern marriages." And with a courteous excuse he rejoined his friends.

It was dinner-time before Chilcote could desert the House, but the moment departure was possible he hurried to Grosvenor Square.

As he entered the house, the hall was empty. He swore irritably under his breath and pressed the nearest bell. Since his momentary exaltation in Fraide's presence, his spirits had steadily fallen, until now they hung at the lowest ebb.

As he waited in unconcealed impatience for an answer to his summons, he caught sight of his man Allsopp at the head of the stairs.

"Come here," he called, pleased to find some one upon whom to vent his irritation. "Has that wire come for me?"

"No, sir. I inquired five minutes back."

"Inquire again."

"Yes, sir," Allsopp disappeared. A second after his disappearance the bell of the hall door whizzed loudly.

Chilcote started. All sudden sounds, like all strong lights, affected him. He half moved to the door, then stopped himself with a short exclamation. At the same instant Allsopp reappeared.

Chilcote turned on him excitedly.

"What the devil's the meaning of this?" he said. "A battery of servants in the house and nobody to open the hall door?"

Allsopp looked embarrassed. "Crapnam is coming directly, sir. He only left the hall to ask Jeffries."

Chilcote turned. "Confound Crapnam!" he exclaimed. "Go and open the door yourself."

Allsopp hesitated, his dignity struggling with his obedience. As he waited, the bell sounded again.

"Did you hear me?" Chilcote said. "Yes, sir," Allsopp crossed the hall.

As the door was opened Chilcote passed his handkerchief from one hand to the other in the tension of hope and fear; then, as the sound of his own name in the shrill tones of a telegraph-boy reached his ears, he let the handkerchief drop to the ground.

Allsopp took the yellow envelope and carried it to his master.

"A telegram, sir," he said. "And the boy wishes to know if there is an answer." Picking up Chilcote's handkerchief, he turned aside with elaborate dignity.

Chilcote's hands were so unsteady that he could scarcely insert his finger under the flap of the envelope. Tearing off a corner, he wrenched the covering apart and smoothed out the flimsy pink paper.

The message was very simple, consisting of but seven words:

"Shall expect you at eleven to-night—Loder."

He read it two or three times, then he looked up. "No answer," he said, mechanically, and to his own ears the relief in his voice sounded harsh and unnatural.

Exactly as the clocks chimed eleven Chilcote mounted the stairs to Loder's rooms. But this time there was more of haste than of uncertainty in his steps, and, reaching the landing, he crossed it in a couple of strides and knocked feverishly on the door.

It opened at once, and Loder stood before him.

The occasion was peculiar. For a moment neither spoke; each involuntarily looked at the other with new eyes and under changed conditions. Each had assumed a fresh standpoint in the other's thought. The passing astonishment, the half-impersonal curiosity that had previously tinged their relationship, was cast aside, never to be reassumed. In each, the other saw himself—and something more.

What's Going On In World; Chief Events Briefly Told

Nations in State of Flux

The world has seen many radical political changes in the past few days.

The United States is included. So far as concerns the names of parties, election changed the majority in neither house of congress. Yet the balance of legislative power is now in new hands—the hands of the ten Progressive senators, Borah, Brookhart,razier, Howell, Johnson, Ladd, La Follette, Norbeck, Norris and Shipstead.

England has had an election which in its result, seems to mark the passing of David Lloyd George as his country's governmental leader. His recent resignation as premier did not necessarily mean this. Under the English system a premier who has been forced to resign may be restored to power very quickly if he wins the next election. Lloyd George, however, did not win. Andrew Bonar Law remains as premier.

In Germany Joseph Wirth handed his resignation as chancellor or premier to President Ebert. Wilhelm Cuno succeeded him. Party reasons were given for Wirth's retirement. Really he quit because he had alienated the country's tangled affairs. Cuno has been director general of the Hamburg-American Line—a business man, not a politician.

Not many days have passed since governments changed in Italy as a result of what was, in effect, a revolution.

The sultan, recently deposed, though he refused to admit himself retired, has fled Turkey. Kemal Pasha is real ruler.

Want a New Set of Rules

The old United States Congress, not the new one chosen at the last election, met in special session Nov. 23. It is through this old Congress that the Harding administration will try to hurry the laws it is most anxious about and fears it cannot get passed after loss of the present large Republican majority in both houses.

When the new congress meets in March a fight will start over the committee chairmanships.

A proposed law, introduced in senate or house of representatives, is not acted on immediately. Instead it is referred to an appropriate committee. The committee decides whether it likes the bill or not and reports accordingly. Its suggestions carry much weight. Or perhaps the committee, disapproving a bill, pigeon holes it and never reports at all.

A chairman has more than any other member of his committee to say. So he possesses great power.

It has been the custom to give the important chairmanships to the oldest members of the majority parties in both houses.

Now, by virtue of seniority, men like Borah and La Follette, will, if the rule holds good, become chairmen of the most influential senate committees. The Republicans do not consider Borah, La Follette and others who think as they do Republicans at all. So they want the rule changed to prevent the Progressives from becoming so powerful.

In the House a similar contest is expected.

Some think it will involve especially the Judiciary Committee. Representing Volstead who, as everybody knows was very dry, was chairman, but he was beaten at the last election. Under the seniority rule his successor as chairman will be Representative Graham, a wet. But Wayne B. Wheeler, lawyer for the Anti-Saloon League, says his organization will not mix in the seniority contest.

At any rate, there unquestionably will be a wet and dry struggle, the rival forces seeking, as one most important prize, to elect, on the one side a wet, and on the other side a dry speaker of the House of Representatives.

Third Party Talk

Since election there has been increasing talk of a new party.

A movement is afoot to bring the farmers and labor together. It is not an unnatural alliance, and equally natural would be a union of such a group with the Progressive bloc.

The wets and dries each would like to ally themselves with this body but this may not be so simple. Labor inclines to be wet, the farmers incline to be dry and prohibition is an issue upon which the progressives are split.

Fonar Law Triumphant in England.

The victory of the English Conservatives was clean cut. They have not made them safe for the present.

The Liberals divided between their old leader, Herbert H. Asquith, and David Lloyd George, so that each of these two will head a minority group of his own in Parliament.

Labor, which is a separate party in England, gained ground in the election and in Parliament will be next in strength of the Conservatives.

It is not expected the Conservatives will show any very backward tendencies. Conservatism is much more advanced today than it was 17 years ago when the party was last in power.

New Hand at Helm in Germany

The new German chancellor faces great difficulties.

The allies want the money which the peace conference awarded to them and the German government is at its wit's end for means to raise it. Capitalists say the only way is for labor to work harder and more hours a day. The workers say the only way is for the capitalists to pay larger taxes.

Once a German mark was worth almost an American quarter. Today it takes about 2000 marks to buy a quarter. Thus shows how little value German money has now.

The Germans must have about 2,000,000 tons of grain from other countries soon, or starve. They can buy this grain only on credit, and if they can get anybody to let them have it on such terms, the indebtedness will drive the mark still farther down—from next to nothing to even less than that.

And even then Germany won't have paid the allies.

The ablest financiers in the world can only wonder how it will all come out.

Benito Mussolini is making a good start as premier of Italy, but so little is known of him that there is still much anxiety as to what his policies will be.

Sultan Frightened Flees

The sultan, whose job the followers of Kemal Pasha declared at an end, escaped from Constantinople on a British warship, bound for Malta. He said he was afraid he would be killed if he stayed in Turkey. Kemal will demand his return, as he wants to try him, but there is no probability England will give him up.

Some Americans—mainly those who believe Christians in the Turks power will be made to suffer—want the United States to send troops to Turkey. On the other hand, there seems to be an increase in the number of Americans who suspect the Turks have been misrepresented to some extent by their enemies, and probably have their side, too.

At all events, according to Washington dispatches, evidently on excellent authority, President Harding's mind is firmly made up to have no physical part in the Turkish trouble, and the dispatches add that he considers it ridiculous for people who preach peace to suggest such a thing.

American representatives will have to active share in the meeting soon to be held at Lausanne, to make peace between Turkey and Greece and to try to settle the whole Turkish question, but they will watch closely to prevent American interests from being sacrificed.

Ismet Pasha, who came from Constantinople to represent Turkey at the meeting, is quoted as saying:

"I hope Americans will profit by our reconstruction. They will find a stable government in Turkey, good treatment and splendid business opportunities."

Twelve hundred miles of the coast of Chile, between the towns of Antofagasta and Valdivia, have been shaken by an earthquake and then swept by a tidal wave. Some estimate the number of dead are as high as 2000. This section of the Andes is geologically young and earthquakes therefore are frequent.

AUTO ROAD MAP NOW IS REGULAR ADVERTISING GIFT

By Associated Press

Chicago, Nov. 23.—Automobile road maps have entered the competitive field of calendars, blotters and almanacs as advertising gifts, according to publishers of motor car specialties, who now are printing these guides to the outdoors by millions, because they say, the modern American no longer is inclined to sit indoors and study dates since the automobile paved the way to highways and byways when leisure time arrives.

First demands for touring guides was supplied by automobile agencies and clubs, collected by touring at considerable cost. As paving progressed, the newspapers took up the work, establishing touring bureaus and printing the progress in road making. This led to the distribution of regional road maps by various newspapers to their readers as advertising mediums.

The cartographers discovered that automobilists wanted maps of every sort, while the ever changing character of the roads made new maps mandatory. The heads of various concerns, having personal use for the road guides, have ordered them by thousands when offered in many forms and sizes.

U. S. OIL INDUSTRY STARTED FROM 25 BARREL WELL

By Associated Press

Chicago, Nov. 23.—The American oil industry of today, including 275,000 wells producing 1,500,000 barrels of oil a day, started with one well producing 25 barrels a day, according to the American Petroleum Institute.

Col. Edwin L. Drake, a pioneer in the oil industry, brought in the first producing well in 1859, near Titusville, Pa. At the time the well was put to the pump, the world was using fats and greases for illuminating and lubricating purposes and the automobile was unknown.

If Kidneys and Bladder Bother

Take Salts to flush Kidneys and neutralize irritating acids.

Kidney and bladder irritations often result from uric acid, says a noted authority. The kidneys filter this acid from the blood and pass it on to the bladder, where it may remain to irritate and inflame, causing a burning, scalding sensation, or setting up an irritation at the neck of the bladder, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night. The sufferer is in constant dread; the water passes sometimes with a scalding sensation and is very profuse; again, there is difficulty in voiding it.

Bladder weakness most folks call it, because they can't control urination. While it is extremely annoying and sometimes very painful, this is often one of the most simple ailments to overcome. Get about four ounces of Jad Salts from your pharmacist and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast; continue this for two or three days. This will help neutralize the acids in the urine so it is no longer a source of irritation to the bladder and urinary organs, which then act normal again.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, harmless, and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is used by thousands of folks who are subject to urinary disorders caused by uric acid irritation. Jad Salts is splendid for kidneys and causes no bad effects whatever.

Here you have a pleasant, effervescent lithia water-drink, which often quickly relieves bladder irritation.

It is not alone the possession of money which makes you happy, but the feeling of SECURITY against want and adversity that makes you contented.

CORN IS NATION'S MOST IMPORTANT FARM CROP

By Associated Press
Washington, Nov. 22.—Corn, the Red Man's gift to the White Man, has come to be the nation's most important farm crop. Consumed either directly or in the form of wheat and other animal products, it is the principal source of the nation's food supply. The 1921 year-book of the Department of Agriculture shows just what extent the three billion bushel crop forms the basis of the livestock industry. Forty per cent of the crop is fed to swine on farms, 20 per cent to horses and mules on farms, and 15 percent to cattle on farms. Only 10 per cent is used direct for human food.

Corn was one of the most important gifts America made to the rest of the world. The United States now produces about three-fourths of the world's corn crop. That corn also is an important crop in Argentina, Brazil, Mexico and some of the southern European countries, is shown in the report.

Blue Diamond Co. Controls Billions Dollars Worth Coal Lands And Mines.

Knoxville, Nov. 24.—Retirement of Alex Bonnyman of Knoxville as president of the Blue Diamond Coal sales company interests and the election to the position of his brother, James Bonnyman of Birmingham, was announced here yesterday, incident to a consolidation of coal mining interests in local fields amounting to several billions of dollars.

The Blue Diamond Coal sales company was organized in 1916 by Alex Bonnyman of this city to market coal produced by the various coal mining companies owned and controlled by the Blue Diamond or Bonnyman interests. The immense interests controlled by the Bonnyman's include the Blue Diamond Coal Company, Liberty Coal Company, Crown Coal Company, Blue Diamond Virginia Coal Company, Campbell Coal Mining Company and the Highcliff Coal Company. These interests include mines and extensive coal lands in four states, Tennessee, Virginia, Kentucky and Alabama.

Only recently the Blue Diamond organization acquired from the R. C. Campbell Coal Company of Atlanta the Crown By-Product operation. E. Harlan, Kentucky, and have also leased recently 3,000 acres of coal lands from the Peabody interests of Chicago living in Lee county, Virginia. Development of these lands will involve an expenditure of over $1,000,000. This development is within 75 miles of Knoxville. The Kentucky interests of the company include valuable holdings in Harlan and Hazard coal producing districts of Kentucky, the mine in Harlan nearly producing over a million dollars worth of coal.

URGE KENNE AS ARMY FLYING FIELD'S NAME
*****

By Associated Press
Lexington, Ky., Nov. 21.—The heroism of Kentucky's only aviator killed in action overseas is the subject of resolution by American Legion posts, citizens' committee and church organizations, urging that the army flying field at Louisville be named for Howard I. Kenne.

A forced landing one day, amid barbed wire and shell holes, shot down the next day by enemy machine guns behind the American lines and shot down in flames the third day behind the German lines summarizes briefly the last days of Lieutenant Kenne, of the 99th Aero Squadron and his pilot, Sergeant McElroy.

A letter from Lieutenant Floyd G. E. Reilly, whose home was Nashville, also a member of the 99th Aero Squadron, written to the mother of Howard Kenne, says his team already had distinguished itself for courage by taking a column of Germany from a very low altitude with a deadly machine gun fire, first with the pilot's gun and then with four son's ably handled Lewis.

"In operations along this front," between the Meuse and the Argonne, those same two had made a name for themselves by their dashing indifference to danger, combined with a remarkable ability to accomplish difficult missions."

Lieutenant Reilly was killed in action three weeks after writing this letter.

LYNCH SERVICES TOMORROW

T. R. Hill left this afternoon for Lynch where he will speak twice tomorrow. He will teach the combined mens Bible classes of Lynch, Benham and Poor Fork in the morning and in the afternoon he will address a public meeting of persons from these three places, his subject being "Americanism."

The Bible classes of Lynch, Benham and Poor Fork are non-sectarian and are in charge of the general managers of their respective companies. An attempt to establish model camps at these places is being made and these managers realize that the spiritual side cannot be neglected in this. So speakers from all over the country of different denominations are being brought to address the combined classes and help build up big Bible classes in each camp.
